Dear Mr. Lake,

As a mother and alternative health care professional, I urge you very strongly to push for labeling our food products with the ingredients contained in them, including those that have been genetically altered. It is to our mutual benefit to know what we are consuming and allow us, the American public, an educated choice, rather than keeping us in the dark and condemning us to undirected mutations. Without truth, choice no longer is present in our lives. The similarity to a big brother dictatorship is too close for comfort.

Yours truly,

"Lujah"
